Policy and Regulatory Framework Review and Development

A business solutions partner of choice

Policy and regulatory framework review process

A policy and regulatory framework review process will bring to the fore clear conceptual models, the applicable compliance perspectives, roles and accountabilities, and well defined processes to be followed. Once implemented there should be high levels of efficiency and consistency in terms of the embedded performance of activities. The review process will include analysis to ensure that policies and regulatory frameworks are aligned and comply with the latest local and national legislation, laws and perspectives.

Development of new policies and regulatory frameworks

The development of new policies and regulatory frameworks will at large be informed by the specific objectives to be achieved, will include a stakeholder engagement process and the study of various organisational documents, including the latest local and national legislation, laws and perspectives.

Both the review and/or development process will lead to outcomes that are captured within the organisation's templates and formats. Where required, relevant knowledge transfer will take place to strengthen the organisation's own review and development process to empower teams to implement and support.
